Letter From the President

On behalf of the Kitchen Cabinet Manufacturer's Association, it is my pleasure to introduce the 2016-2017 KCMA Directory of Members, a valued portfolio of cabinet manufacturers and suppliers to the industry.

My election as President has special meaning to me because my grandfather, Dwight Gahm, was a founding father of the KCMA. Both he and my father, Walt Gahm, served as president in 1963 and 1985, respectively. Being a third generation president of the KCMA is a true honor and provides me the privilege of the opportunity to follow in their footsteps, as well as all of the other past industry leaders who have served in the same role.

Mark Trexler, KCMA's Immediate Past President and President and CEO of Master WoodCraft Cabinetry, was an outstanding leader for KCMA. He is a businessman who understands our industry and the many needs of our membership. He led our association diligently through a leadership transition period, with careful consideration of not just what the association needed now, but more importantly - what the needs will be in the next several to many years.

The future of the KCMA is bright. We have new leadership and a new staff that is eager to make a positive mark on our industry and take our association to the next level. By embracing the evolving digital age, our association looks to expand our reach beyond our traditional audience and gain exposure in areas where we have little to no presence. Our new leadership will also work to build new bridges and open new lines of communication with other trade associations and business organizations as well as repair and mend those that have been broken in the past. Building upon existing relationships and establishing new ones will help strengthen the KCMA position among our peers and provide more leverage in addressing concerning issues as they arise.

Uniting with KCMA leadership, it is our privilege to present you with the 2016-2017 KCMA Membership Directory, a guide to the most esteemed cabinet companies and key suppliers. Here's to continued success for our industry.

Best Regards,

John Gahm
Vice President of Manufacturing,
Kitchen Kompact, Inc.

The association was founded in 1955 as the National Institute of Wood Kitchen Cabinets at a time when the future of factory-built wood cabinets faced a stiff challenge from an expanding steel cabinet market. The association name was changed to the National Kitchen Cabinet Association in 1961 to respond to trends and diversity in the use of materials for cabinet construction. In the spring of 1990, association members overwhelmingly voted to change the association's name to the Kitchen Cabinet Manufacturers Association to more clearly reflect the nature of the association, its purpose, members and services.

Today, with over 300 members, KCMA is the only national trade association that exclusively represents cabinet manufacturers, and suppliers to the industry.

KCMA offers its growing membership a package of services designed to strengthen individual companies, as well as the entire industry. Services include:

- Annual Leadership Convention –
NEXT EVENT: MAY 7-9, 2017 in Ponte Vedra Beach, FL.

The KCMA By-laws were amended in 2010 to require that Active Members conduct 51% or more of their value added processes in North America. Suppliers to the industry are welcome to join the association as Associate Members. Both Active and Associate Members are represented on the Board of Directors and are actively involved in association activities.

STANDARDS and CERTIFICATION PROGRAM

In November 2016, KCMA adopted a new certification seal!

In operation since 1965 when KCMA developed and adopted the first national construction and performance standards for kitchen and vanity cabinets. The ANSI/KCMA A161.1 Certification Program is administered by a Director of Certification under the direction of the KCMA Standards and Certification Committee. This program of voluntary self-regulation has made the KCMA Certified Seal a nationally recognized and respected symbol that assures the high quality, durability and consistent performance of the cabinets bearing it. The right to display this seal must be earned in the testing laboratory by proving compliance with the American National Standard Institute ANSI/KCMA A161.1-2012 standards. Manufacturers whose products pass the tests are licensed by KCMA to use the KCMA Certification Seal and to indicate that their cabinets meet or exceed the standards. Currently, over 125 companies participate in the program.

KCMA certification requires rigorous, multiple tests administered by qualified and experienced independent laboratories. To meet the KCMA standards, the cabinets must meet general construction requirements, pass five structural tests, door operation tests, drawer tests and five finish tests. In addition, KCMA monitors compliance with ANSI/KCMA A161.1-2012 by conducting annual in-plant selection and testing of certified cabinets. KCMA responds to complaints on cabinets displaying the seal and works to ensure adequate quality control.

Cabinet manufacturers do not have to be a member of the KCMA to have their cabinets tested and certified.

ENVIRONMENTAL STEWARDSHIP PROGRAM

The KCMA Environmental Stewardship Program (ESP) Turns 10!

In November 2016, KCMA adopted a new certification seal!

The KCMA Environmental Stewardship Program (ESP) encourages industry policies and practices that benefit the environment and the wellbeing of society. The program provides a tangible way for cabinet manufacturers to show their commitment to sound environmental practices. Over 120 plants and brands (listed on the KCMA Web Site, on www.kcma.org and recognized in the pages of this Directory) meet the requirements for ESP certification.

ESP goes beyond other environmental programs by taking a holistic approach to certification, holding industry to higher standards and requiring third-party verification for many of its criteria. After meeting the certification requirements in areas such as air quality (low-formaldehyde emitting composite wood), resource management and environmental stewardship, companies are awarded the ESP seal to display on their products.

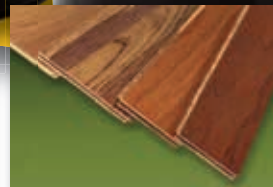

The ESP program is administered by the KCMA Director of Certification under the direction of the KCMA Environmental Stewardship Program Committee. The Committee reviews the criteria for certification every year to ensure that ESP maintains its credibility by keeping up with the latest technology, changes in industry standards and new federal/state regulations.

The KCMA 06-2016 ESP certification requirements are based on currently obtainable materials and practices. The requirements are reviewed every year and will be amended as new, improved materials become available. The specifications have been revised five times since the program's inception in 2006 to add more products and make requirements more restrictive.

Since March 2009, the ESP program has been audited annually and has earned favorable reviews from a 3rd party ANSI-accredited organization, Intertek, Inc. The ESP program earned further credibility by its reference in the ANSI-approved ICC 700 National Green Building Standard, the benchmark in green residential construction.

Availability:

European Beech is the most available and sustainable hardwood in the world.

Yield & Throughput:

Beech has fewer defects-wider widths and will increase both yield and throughput.

Sustainability:

Europe's forests are increasing at 2 times the rate of North American forests. PEFC & FSC certified.

Machinability:

Although it is very hard and strong, it machines 96% perfect parts and hold a fine edge better.

Affordability:

European beech will provide a lower output cost in most products.

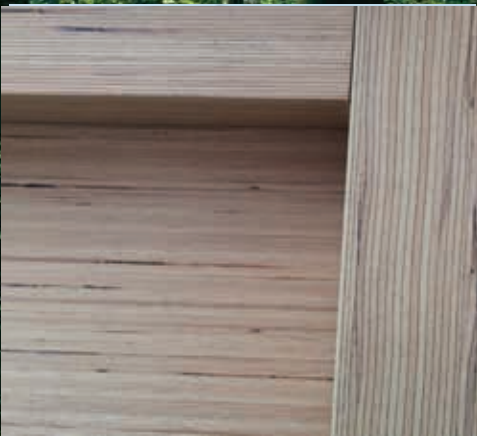

Pollmeier Beech is your readily available, sustainable, durable and easy-to-machine hardwood that is best of all surprisingly affordable.

Now available for sale in North America

from Pollmeier Value Added German Beech™

Now introducing the newest, only high-quality engineered hardwood product of its kind “Ingenious Hardwood BauBuche”

BauBuche uses local raw materials from Sustainable forests with PEFC certification.

BauBuche is beneficial both to the environment and people because at its source in the forest, it produces oxygen and binds CO₂. Applying precise engineering technology, BauBuche preserves the morphology and strength of the natural wood.

BauBuche carries heavier loads than softwood products.

BauBuche has a wide range of applications—from the smallest component up to 60 ft long boards and beams.

The load-bearing capacity of BauBuche reduces dimensions and cross-sections in timber construction—more space and less material consumption.

BauBuche is distinguished by its 0.15-inch veneer layer precision and exceptional surface quality.

BauBuche is as easy to machine as solid wood, and is ideally suited for use in visible construction elements.

BauBuche revitalized the possibilities of laminated veneer lumber with top-quality aesthetics and unmatched strength.

BauBuche can be stained to any color just like solid European beech lumber.

BauBuche is price competitive through efficient manufacturing and economical use of materials.

Where sustainability, innovation, aesthetics and cost-efficiency come together
